Have the pleasure to invite you to the 20th Cairo Climate Talks (CCT)
Panel Discussion

On February 18, 2014 at 6:30 pm

at The German Science Center (DWZ), 11 Al-Saleh Ayoub Street, Zamalek, Cairo, Egypt

To review and assess the following topic
“From Warsaw to Paris:
Negotiating Global Climate Change”

The 20th Cairo Climate Talks, “From Warsaw to Paris: Negotiating Global Climate Change”, will look into the outcomes of the UNFCCC Conference of the Parties (COP19), which took place in November 2013 in Warsaw, and assess the road toward 2015 in Paris, where the next crucial climate negotiations will take place. Unlike the 1997 Kyoto Protocol which imposed greenhouse gas emissions reductions on wealthy, developed nations only, the COP21 in Paris will go a step further and include commitments by all nations for the period after 2020. The Cairo Climate Talks is inviting local and foreign experts to shed light on the roadmap to those talks. They will discuss where they stand today regarding global climate negotiations and give insights on their possible contributions for a new global agreement.

H.E. Ambassador Mahmoud Samir Samy

Deputy Assistant Foreign Minister for Environment and Sustainable Development, Egyptian Ministry of Foreign Affairs

Dr. Camilla Bausch
